

Permitting single media outlets to control entire markets or large market sectors does not serve consumers and advertisers seeking competitive pricing nor does it serve the democraticizing principle of discourse in our society. I believe it would be a breach of the FCC's duty to administer the national commons of our airwaves were broadcast ownership rules loosened permitting individual firms to achieve market domination. There is no other reason for such a change.